

Slaying 'Stuns' Widow's Friends

By FRANK LaPIERRE

Back in the 1930s "Snug Harbor" was the place to stop in Pacifica and linger away the time enjoying the sun, surf and sand of Rockaway Beach.

So popular were the neat little cottages owned and managed by Laura B. Dunnigan and her sea captain husband that even famed movie star Dick Powell often visited there.

The high and the mighty from San Francisco and lively weekend partygoers rented cottages from the Dunnigans. The area was alive with laughter, old-timers remember.

Capt. Dunnigan named the compound he bought in the early twenties after a port he once visited in Alaska, his wife recently told a reporter.

After the captain's death in 1954, Laura Dunnigan carried on operation of the cottages, each named after a sea vessel, such as the "San Pedro," "San Pablo," and "Ocean Spray."

Laura Dunnigan and Snug Harbor became synonymous with Rockaway Beach.

At 87, she was still active. She loved to tell stories about the old days, her friends say.

And she still loved everybody.

One of the stories she tells is about her becoming a waitress for Charles Gust at his Rockaway Beach restaurant.

"I remember Laura from 'way back,'" recalls Chuck Gust, son of present owner Nick Gust.

"She used to boast that she taught my father how to mix drinks. She was a lovely person," Gust said.

Everybody remembers Laura Dunnigan as a lovely person.

Active in church affairs and civic functions, and always ready to help those less fortunate, the story of her death spread through the small community like wildfire Monday.

No one could explain why she became the victim of what Pacifica police are still calling "a killing without motive."

If there was a motive, Pacifica police are not saying what it is.

All they will publicly say is that shortly before 6 a.m. Monday, Mrs. Laura B. Dunnigan was found asleep in her home at Snug Harbor, 467 Donaldson Ave., and her slayer plunged a large butcher knife into her heart.

Coroner's Investigator Leonard Lang at first had thought Mrs. Dunnigan died from multiple stab wounds, but later changed his findings.

A second wound found on the victim's arm apparently was made by the single stab wound, Lang said.

Carl Casperson, 28, was taken into custody at the scene after police received a call reportedly from the alleged slayer's mother.

Casperson was reported to be under 72 hour observation today at Chope Hospital in San Mateo where he was brought "in an unstable condition," according to medical authorities.

MURDER SCENE

Murder scene — This is the neat little cottage where police found the stabbed body of Mrs. Laura Dunnigan, 467 Donaldson Ave., Pacifica. The victim's late husband, a sea captain who died in 1954, named the compound with its three cottages "Snug Harbor." A man she befriended for many years, Carl Casperson, 28, was arrested and charged with the slaying.

Board Unhappy In JESD

By WILL E. THOMAS

You could call this a "report card," with members of the Jefferson Elementary School District Board of Trustees in Daly City-Colma giving Supt. Herbert Hemington about a "C" for performance, although higher for potential.

That "grade" came out in separate interviews with the five trustees, who see a higher potential for Hemington, but said they believe he is unaware of community desires and often is not listening to those parents most active in the community — or to the board.

The trustees and Hemington, who came from the Oak Grove District, San Jose, 1½ years ago, were contacted after discord and the threatened resignation of one trustee came to light.

Superintendent Hemington, who has a four-year contract, said he could not respond to the board's comments without knowing all of the details.

The criticism from the board appears to stem, in part, from the fact that Hemington does not reside in the community, although he said he would; is pushing proposals aimed at obtaining more federally-funded programs, although the board majority has said it won't approve any more; is advocating additional minimum days and permanent school advisory councils, although the community and trustees have expressed opposition to them.

Mrs. Beverly K. Forrester, on the board five years, said she is "frustrated" in dealing with the district's administration and is seriously considering resigning, unless "I see a positive change in the immediate future."

She appears to be the only trustee on the verge of resigning, but other board members support her concern about what they claim to be the superintendent's failure to realize what the community and board want.

Mrs. Dorothy Adams, has voted mostly for the administration's federal money proposals, along with Trustee Jim Cranna. However, she too, said the superintendent does not know what the public wants and that there is validity to complaints of unresponsiveness.

Mrs. Adams said she has seen Hemington going in the opposite direction than what "I thought we said."

"He seems to be listening," said Cranna, "but the results don't always bear that out."

Trustee David Parker also said the superintendent "has a tendency to go off on his own."

Trustee Al Schwarzbach said there is cause for frustration; and he has experienced some himself.

Sometimes, he said, he thinks the board is "not being listened to."

He said, "The educational system belongs to the community and the administration is accountable. . . . The day that management loses touch with the people . . . they are on the road to an unacceptable level of performance."

"I'm kind of disappointed," Cranna said. Yet, none of the trustees are wholly pessimistic about Hemington's ability to better his mark with the board — for he does have potential, they agreed.

The board members note the less indicated that if Hemington is going to succeed in the JESD, he must start getting to know the community better. After nearly two years, he has not moved into the district, as he indicated he would to trustees and community selection committee members when he was interviewed for the superintendency.

Hemington, who cannot by law be forced to reside in the district, said he is having a home built in Hillsborough, where he reportedly took advantage of a good price. He would be only 12 minutes from work, he said.

He and his wife, who teaches in the San Jose area, have six children. Four still reside at home.

Schwarzbach agreed that it is "desirable and preferable" that the superintendent reside in the district.

"I thought he would do something here . . . move into a four or five bedroom in Westlake or Serramonte," said Cranna. "The man did say he would move here."

Trustee Parker also admitted that Hemington's impending move to Hillsborough is "not what I'd hoped for." However, he said the move closer to the district should allow for greater participation in school and community activities.

The thrust there is that Hemington might learn more about what the citizens active in the district's schools are thinking.

"Do you honestly believe his (Hemington) moving here would help him understand the community more?" Mrs. Forrester was asked.

"Yes," she replied. "I could not represent San Jose . . . the Oak Grove District . . . living in Daly City. I don't know their needs. I don't think the superintendent, not being involved in the community, can know what the community wants."

She pointed out, however,

"On the other hand, that's the board's responsibility. The board represents the community. The board's going to have to direct the superintendent on behalf of the community what they want done."

"I think there is an attempt being made, but the administration either is not listening or perhaps, doesn't understand — or perhaps he feels he is following the board's directive."

Mrs. Forrester rated Hemington "five" on a scale of one to 10. So did Mrs. Adams, who said he "potentially is very good." Parker placed Hemington at "five" or "six" on the 10-scale; Schwarzbach said, "six"; Cranna, "four."

Parker added, though, that Hemington had a "potential of an 'eight' or 'nine' because, in part, he is 'dedicated to kids' and is 'a hell of an individual.'"

He said that if the board can't work with the superintendent and dictate to him, then probably the fault is the board's not Hemington's, whose entire top echelon resides outside the community.

"I think what has happened is that Herb has proceeded at little too quickly for us," Cranna said.

Cranna personally believes Hemington is trying to hold down too many responsibilities that ought to be delegated to his assistants.

"I think he has potential," said Cranna. "He is very sincere and I feel he is trying to do the best he can. When he took over the district it was in sad shape, and there are many fires he is trying to put out."

Mrs. Adams agreed that Hemington is "fully interested in the welfare of children."

"I realize people are upset with him," she said, "and I'm upset with him."

None of the trustees seem to want him to leave at this point.

Mrs. Forrester said the trustees glean public sentiment from visiting the schools, being active in the PTA and other community organizations.

"I hear," she noted, "a great dissatisfaction with what is going on at the district level. I hear the (public) is very pleased."

Murder and Mentally Ill Explored in Series

By DUANE SANDUL
(First of two articles)

News Item: Kenneth Russell, whose mother had unsuccessfully tried to have him returned to a hospital for mental treatment before he hurt somebody, was found incompetent to stand trial on charges of murdering a close friend.

News item: Michael Castro, the Pacifica man whose father had signed to have him released from a mental facility, was found not guilty by reason of insanity of beheading his father.

News Item: Charles Thomas, a psychiatric outpatient at Chope Community Hospital in San Mateo, was ruled incompetent to stand trial on charges of stabbing to death his blind stepfather.

News Item: Benny Harris, 31, was found not guilty by reason of insanity for stomping to death a Daly City man who had been strolling with his wife. Harris' attorney said that the defendant was prematurely released from a state hospital because of budget cut-backs.

Could these homicides have been prevented? Should psychiatrists have forecast each defendant's potential for violence? Do the present laws protect society? What changes, if any are needed to balance the rights of a patient and the safety of the public?

Answers to these questions come from a variety of sources — a judge, psychiatrists, parents of adult children in mental institutions, and attorneys representing the defendants.

The spectrum will be explored in a two-part series. The Russell case was the first reported homicide in San Mateo County in some time committed by a purported "ex-mental patient." All four such homicides occurred last year.

A common thread surfaced in reviewing the cases. Each killer apparently had stopped taking medication aimed at curbing violence tendencies and to enable him to function in society.

The man who made the rulings of incompetency or insanity in each of the four cases is San Mateo County Presiding Criminal Superior Court Judge Frank Piombo.

His decisions were molded by reports from psychiatrists. In most instances, they returned split opinions as to incompetency vs. competency and sanity vs. insanity.

"I feel that something is wrong, but I don't know what it is," Piombo said in recalling the four cases.

"We must examine if it's the fault of the law, and if so, change the law," the judge asserted. "If it's the psychiatric standards in determining who is or who isn't a threat to society let's change the standards."

"I feel that we sometimes put an impossible task on psychiatrists in examining patients because of different criteria for legal insanity and mental illness," Piombo

Repeaters in Crime: 65 Pct. Are Arrested At Least Twice

By FRANK LaPIERRE
(Second of Four Parts)

Since 1969, violent crimes in the United States have increased 47 per cent and property crimes by 37 per cent.

The highest crime region in the nation is the Southern states with 18 per cent, while in the West an increase of 14 per cent has been reported, according to the Federal Bureau of Investigation's recent Crime Report for 1974.

Trends were reported in 1975 that shatter records set by criminals the previous year.

During 1974 an estimated 10 million serious crimes were reported to law enforcement agencies involved in the relatively new Uniform Crime Reporting program.

And the Western states have the dubious distinction of showing an increase in the murder rate of 8 per cent — one of the highest rates in the country.

Again, the suburbs took the biggest bloodbath with an increase in murders of 14 per cent, while urban areas (250,000 inhabitants or more) rose only 3 per cent.

What has law enforcement officers even more concerned is the unexpected rise of repeat offenders — those who have been arrested, convicted, released from prison and again are arrested for commission of a crime.

The fancy word used by law enforcement agencies to describe repeat offenders is "recidivism."

An astounding 65 per cent of the 207,748 offenders in the FBI's Computerized History File during the period 1970-74 have been arrested two or more times.

These same individuals were arrested an average of four times each for various crimes, according to the statisticians.

But statistics can be made to show whatever an agency quoting them wants them to show, many officials connected with law enforcement point out.

For example, the Uniform Crime Reporting reports states that 68 per cent of those persons convicted of murder and released — for one reason or another — were re-arrested.

But the report fails to specify what crime these persons were again arrested for.

Was the ex-convict picked up for another murder?

Or was he found guilty of drug abuse — a far lesser crime than murder?

Others slam the penal system, alleging it is too easy on those persons incarcerated.

Judges, parole officers, and probation officials all have come under fire for their efforts in handling criminals.

CHIEF DAVID HANSEN
Officer Fred Holeywinski compiles statistics.

Where does the fault, if there is any, lie for this state of affairs?

Are those entrusted with handling criminals after they are arrested and convicted too easy on them?

Why has rehabilitation failed?

"Rehabilitation has failed," Daly City Police Chief David Hansen says, "because we assume these people were 'rehabilitated' to start with."

with the administration at the building level and with their teachers."

Mrs. Forrester also claimed, "I have not seen where the administration has made a great attempt to involve themselves with the community."

"I don't think the administration knows what this community wants. It has not been out in the community, attended meetings, open houses at schools, back to school nights where you meet the community."

It is at those kinds of meetings, she said, that you meet those most interested in the schools and who probably are the most active."

Mrs. Forrester said Hemington had shown a great deal of interest in the community when he applied for his post.

"He thought," she said, "that you had to get involved with the community and be part of the community and pointed out that PTA was an area in which he was interested."

What about PTA — which is surveying community thinking on minimum days?

"I think that while the PTA doesn't represent the total community, it certainly does (represent) the people interested in your schools," Mrs. Forrester said.

The people active in PTA however are not interested only in PTA, she said.

"I see these same people in Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, in a wide variety of community activities."

(They) get around and talk with other people, and I think they are speaking for others when they speak, either in favor of something the district has done or hasn't done."

Schwarzbach said Hemington stepped into a "very challenging set of circumstances, and the state that we were in at the time was not very placid."

The board has fired Supt. Frank L. Greenwood, then hired attorney Keith Breen as interim superintendent prior to the hiring of Hemington.

"Much of his first time," Schwarzbach pointed out, "was fighting brush fires, and he did a commendable job. He has a lot of ability, a lot of capacity to do a good job."

At the same time, he said the board is "very responsible, very involved and is concerned over what is most beneficial to children."

He Hemington "deserves my support until I have sufficient reason to withdraw that support. I don't feel that I have reached that point."

Mrs. Forrester also said, Hemington and his assistants could become "very good administrators (if they) learn that their function is to follow the direction of the board."

Schwarzbach said the district must "stop and sort of collect itself and get a perspective of where we've been and where we are and re-evaluate where we ought to be going."

The same goes for the superintendent, he said.

added, "Perhaps it's time to re-examine our legal insanity rules."

Insanity laws in criminal cases, which will be described later, are applied to a case after an incident.

"That the psychiatric institutions have been unsuccessful in predicting violence is not surprising," said Dr. Howard Gurevitz, director of mental health services for San Mateo County.

"Predicting violence is a very risky business," he said. "The result of this is that those in correctional and judicial systems have often been wary about making a decision on the sole presumption that a person may be dangerous."

"To simply lock up persons in jails or mental health institutions is something which has been challenged in medical and judicial areas," he noted.

"Estimates of predicting future violent acts (of persons committed to mental institutions) varies from expert to expert," Gurevitz maintained. "The chances of being correct are one or two out of 10. On that basis, it's a very low level of accuracy."

"And at that level of reliability, it's very uncomfortable for psychiatrists to make these predictions," Gurevitz asserted. "There are ongoing studies trying to identify factors which might be more viable indicators in the future."

Dr. Gorge Pickett, director of the county's Health and Welfare Department, said matter-of-factly, "If you take any particular case, you can develop a hypothesis that it could have been prevented."

"The ultimate cost to prevent rare occurrences (of violence committed by mentally ill persons) could be disastrous," Pickett said. "I don't believe that the control techniques that we already have can make inroads on the problem."

Pickett explained that because psychiatry is not an exact science, attempts at diagnosing potential violence results in pegging from 10 to 20 times more "false predictions" than correct ones.

James V. Fitzgerald, a county supervisor, frequently asks the same question.

He was involved in the Russell case before the 21-year-old San Bruno stabbed to death a close friend, Gary Yazolino of Pacifica, in January of 1975. Fitzgerald resides next door to Russell's mother, Marian, a widow.

Fitzgerald said that he unsuccessfully tried to prevent Russell's release from a mental hospital. The state's laws governing the rights of a patient could not prevent Russell's release.

The law specified that Russell could be kept at Atascadero State Hospital near San Luis Obispo for no longer than 90 days against his will unless he was deemed a danger to himself or to others.

According to Fitzgerald, the youth's mother had predicted that her son might kill someday, and enlisted Fitzgerald's assistance.

Russell did quite well while on special medication, Fitzgerald said. But he would erupt violently whenever doctors removed the tranquilizers in an effort to determine if he could get along without them.

Less than four months after the killing, Judge Piombo ruled that Russell was incompetent to stand trial, and returned him to Atascadero until doctors determine that he is mentally competent to face the murder charge.

Last August, the ocean community of Pacifica was shocked by one of the most gruesome homicides in county crime annals.

Michael Phillip Castro, 27, beheaded his father, Felix.

According to reports from psychiatrists to Judge Piombo, Castro has a history of mental hospitalization dating back to 1971. He was first admitted to Agnews State Hospital for apparent violent and bizarre behavior.

He was treated for six months with antipsychotic medication, then released.

Castro was admitted to Chope Community Hospital in March 1973 after he went to the South San Francisco Police Station and claimed that he had attempted to rape a woman. There had been no rape. Castro asked for help.

Psychiatrists also told Judge Piombo that Castro was admitted to an institution in April of 1974 after a non-violent neighborhood incident involving bizarre behavior.

Authorities said that Castro's father, one year before his death, successfully moved to have his son returned home so that he could assist in caring for his disabled mother.

"From looking at his record, there's not enough criminal violence in his background which would have justified locking him up and throwing away the key," Attorney Steven Grier of Burlingame said. He was appointed by the court to represent Castro.

"In this case, it would have been hard to justify not releasing him after his father requested it," Grier said.

"I, for sure, believe that he was mentally as well as legally insane," Grier said. Last fall, Judge Piombo agreed, ruling that Castro was not guilty of his father's killing by reason of insanity.

Judge Piombo ordered Castro committed to Atascadero State Hospital until doctors there deem that he has regained his sanity.

Most psychiatrists agreed that Castro suffered from a schizophrenic illness with marked paranoid features. The court-appointed psychiatrists found him insane; the defense psychiatrist found him sane.

"This (the killing) is something which couldn't have been predicted," Grier concluded.

James P. Fox of San Carlos is an attorney who was appointed to represent 41-year-old Charles Thomas of San Mateo after Thomas stabbed to death his blind stepfather, James Rucker Brown, last Oct. 2.

Like Grier, Fox said that the killing could not have been predicted.

"I don't know what his mental state was other than what the psychiatrists say, and they apparently are unaware of his full past history," Fox said.

"I don't have much faith in psychiatrists' ability to predict behavior," he declared.

Thomas was being treated as an out-patient at the county's Region III Day Center.

Like Castro and Russell, psychiatrists believe that Thomas had stopped taking a medication to minimize psychosis about one month before the killing. In his case, the medicine caused him visual blurring.

"Perhaps if he had taken his medication, this could have been prevented," Fox said.

One doctor reported that Thomas claimed to have killed a man in a knife fight in his native Oklahoma many years ago, but was released at his trial because it was self-defense. Fox has been unable to confirm this.

"I couldn't communicate with him early in the legal proceedings," Fox said.

Thomas was found incompetent to stand trial last January after a majority of psychiatrists told Judge Piombo that Thomas was mentally incapable of understanding the charges.

"I believe that he probably has been suffering from chronic schizophrenia for many years," one psychiatrist reported. "From the evidence at hand, I believe that at the time of the alleged offense, he was very likely legally insane."

But that issue remains open. Thomas is at Atascadero. Like Russell, when doctors decide that he has regained his competency, he will be returned to San Mateo County to face the murder charge.

"What's interesting to note is that Thomas was being treated as mentally ill and nobody could determine that he could become legally insane and commit a senseless killing for no apparent reason," Fox said.

Jawbone Found

Crime

The lower jawbone of a young female was found Thursday noon partially buried in the sands of Thornton Beach State Park by a Pacifica woman out for a stroll.

Police said preliminary medical studies of the jawbone indicated it had been in the water for approximately four years.

Jessie Randolph, 28, of 399 Nelson Court, Pacifica, was walking along the beach shortly after noon when she saw the jawbone.

"Statistics prove the rehabilitation programs have failed miserably. It could be too late, but I feel (we) should be stricter," Chief Hansen says.

The FBI statistics do not paint a clear picture of what is happening in California, argue Pat Bolger and Glenn Heransberger, district parole officers in San Mateo County and San Francisco, respectively.

Both are veteran lawmen of more than two decades experienced.

"They agree that some persons make a career of crime and that they must be institutionalized."

But they do not believe that the state needs larger prisons.

What is needed, they contend, is smaller facilities where persons serving sentences may be more closely supervised.

The days of the huge "San Quentin type" prisons is over, they say.

Together, Bolger and Heransberger are responsible for sending dozens of felons back to "the joint" to serve out their indeterminate sentences.

These are cases in which a parole officer feels a person is "improving" and should be given the benefit of the doubt.

If, for example, a man is paroled to their custody for armed robbery and is later picked up for petty theft, Bolger says, he should be given "some punishment at the local level" but not necessarily returned to prison.

Generally speaking, records indicate murderers released on parole are the best risks, Bolger notes.

Rape and armed robberies do not fare so well. Nor do crimes against property (burglary and auto theft).

In these areas, the parole officers see more of what they call "residual cases," those persons who keep going back to prison.

What causes recidivism?

"That's hard to say. First, it could be difficulty in getting a job, or separating these men from their old habits, their old friends when they are released," Bolger says.

It's hard to convince the public these ex-convicts are Boy Scouts after they have led a life of crime," Bolger explains.

Bolger defends his office and denies he and his associates are "bleeding hearts." They have had some strict restraints imposed on their activities by the courts in recent years.

Startling is the proclamation by Heransberger that the public is "going to have to live with a certain amount of criminality."

There is a diminishing return on the cost of bringing about a complete change in a human being who is in prison to make him productive again, Heransberger says.

There also is a new term being banded about by lawmen concerning the retraining of criminals. It is "redirect," rather than the overused "rehabilitate," Bolger notes.

The San Francisco parole office has five units, each with seven agents. Each handles 50 felony cases and 33 cases involving addicts. "We must retain physical custody of some persons — society demands it," Bolger explains.

Charles Bates, special agent in charge of the FBI's San Francisco office, says law-abiding citizens "are not getting the protection they are entitled to."

While parole and probation are necessary tools in dealing with criminals, the scales in recent years have been tipped against the law-abiding citizen, Bates says.

Of the some 500,000 citizens each year who are victims of the three major crimes — murder, robbery and rape — most are simply "in the wrong place at the wrong time," Bates points out.

"The point of the law is to protect the law-abiding against the law breakers and we've lost sight of this in the past. The vast majority of Americans support good law enforcement," according to Bates.

The veteran law enforcement officer cannot explain why rehabilitation of criminals is not working, where the fault of this failure lies, or if short prison sentences are to blame.

"You have to be an optimist to keep your sanity in this business," Bolger adds.

Budget Dispute In SSF

By JANET PARKER
Cost-cutting in City Hall by deleting administrative positions from the 1976-77 budget is turning out to be a last-minute controversial topic in South San Francisco's City Council election.

The City Council has moved to drop the city planner and director of finance positions from the budget and, it was learned this week, the administrative assistant of public services also has been dropped.

The council's actions have spurred claims by candidates that the economic measures were intentionally made close to the March 2 election. Two councilmen, Warren Steinkamp and Terry Mirri, are seeking re-election.

City Manager Ed Alario said that Davy Hoy, administrative assistant to the city manager personnel officer, was told earlier this year that he will no longer be employed by the city as of June 30.

Since Hoy received notice, Pete Milkovich, who was administrative assistant for public services, has moved into Hoy's office and will assume his duties. Milkovich's old job has been scrapped.

Although Hoy has until June 30 to find another job, he said he may be leaving much sooner. Hoy is looking into several job opportunities now.

"I have been aware of this," Hoy said. "It's something that has been in the wind for sometime."

The city will save about $23,000, including the cost of fringe benefits, by eliminating the position.

Alario said Hoy had the know-how but was "too nice a guy" for the job, which includes hiring and firing in all city departments. Council decided Milkovich could handle the job better.

During the last month, Hoy has been helping Milkovich move into the job.

Alario said the council, at various times, also has discussed the discontinuation of the finance officer position, held by William Anderson; the assistant personnel officer, David Haughey; and the administrative assistant of parks and recreation, Rosemary Cameron.

It was Alario's recommendation that the three deleted positions would have the least adverse effect on South San Franciscans.

Since the disclosure of the council's staff cuts, candidates have provided a few suggestions of their own.

Ronald Acosta has suggested the city clerk take over the duties of the finance officer and the finance director.

He also said the personnel department could be cut from four employees to one.

The assistant to the city manager, a post held by Michael Wilson, is another Acosta would consider deleting.

Candidate Roberta Teglia said the public information officer should be eliminated, as well as various other department assistants, after an examination of staffing.

William Borba wouldn't specify which positions he would drop from the budget.

Candidate William Craib said there are no positions he would definitely retain or delete.

"I think they are all needed until I can get a good look at them," Craib said. "I'm not going to just shoot from the hip."

Consultant Hiring OKd

Hiring of a consultant to conduct a recreational needs analysis in the revision of the parks and recreation element of the county general plan has been approved by a 3 to 1 vote of the San Mateo County Board of Supervisors.

Supervisor Edward J. Bacciocco Jr. voted against the proposal, claiming that "the case hasn't been made that this can't be done in-house."

County Planning Director Donald A. Wolfe said that the total consultant service costs will be about $40,000, with the amount for the recreational need analysis not to exceed $20,000.

Supervisor John M. Ward asserted that a public information program is lacking in the county.

Nell Norton

Good morning, good cooks.
Today let us consider some rather simple dishes that go together easily and that don't require taking out a loan in order to purchase the ingredients.

CORNERED BEEF CASSEROLE

1 can corned beef
2 large potatoes, pared and thinly sliced
2 cups white sauce
1/2 cup grated cheddar cheese
Arrange alternate layers of corned beef and sliced potatoes in a lightly greased 1 1/2-quart casserole. Prepare a white sauce and pour over beef mixture. Cover and bake in a 350-degree oven for 45 minutes. Remove cover and sprinkle with the half cup grated cheese. Bake 15 minutes longer, or until potatoes are tender. Serves 4.

WHITE SAUCE

2 Tbsp. butter
2 Tbsp. flour
2 cups milk
4 Tbsp. minced onion
In a saucepan, over low heat, melt the butter, stir in the flour and blend well.
Gradually stir in the two cups milk, stirring constantly to keep it from lumping. Add the grated onion and cook, stirring until smooth and thickened.

As you can see from the instructions, this dessert goes together like a song and your guests will sing your praises when you serve it.

APPLE CRANBERRY CRISP

1 can apple sauce (1 lb. weight)
1 can whole cranberry sauce
Cinnamon
1 cup rolled oats
1/2 cup flour
1 cup brown sugar (firmly packed)
1/2 cup butter or margarine
Butter a 20 x 6 x 2-inch baking dish. Pour applesauce in dish and spoon the cranberry sauce over it. Sprinkle with cinnamon.
Combine the rolled oats, flour and brown sugar. Cut in the margarine until evenly mixed and crumbly. Sprinkle over cranberry layer.
Bake in a 350-degree oven about 40 minutes until the top is nicely browned. Serve with cream, whipped cream or ice cream. Serves 8.

THE MARK RADOVICHES
(Kathleen Henry)

Henry-Radovich

Blue Lake Springs and Southern California were on the honeymoon itinerary of Mr. and Mrs. Mark Joseph Radovich (Kathleen Ann Henry), who exchanged vows at St. Teresa Church in San Francisco. They are living now in San Francisco.

The Rev. Peter Sammon performed the afternoon rites for the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert F. Henry of Daly City, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond J. Radovich of San Francisco.

The Slovenian Hall was the reception site.

The bride asked her sister, Sandra Henry, to serve as the maid of honor. Cathy Radovich, sister of the bridegroom, shared secondary attendants' duties with Cathy Voss, Kim Barth and Joyce Faulkner. Monica Voss served as the flower girl, and Gregory Polos carried the rings.

Best man duties were performed by Dean Bravos, and guests were seated by James Bravos, Manuel Lopez, Steve Faelli, and Marc Shea.

A student at Skyline College, Kathleen was graduated from Serramonte High School. She also has a brother, Richard Henry.

McRobert "Mac" Stewart

Stewart Seeking Position

A former mayor of Daly City, McRobert "Mac" Stewart, today announced his intention to run for the San Mateo County Board of Supervisors' seat, being vacated by Mrs. Jean Fessler. She is not seeking reelection this June.

Stewart is underscoring his campaign on the issue of fiscal responsibility, emphasizing the time has come for the cost of county government to be decreased. He says, the burden of paying for government has been shoved onto the local resident taxpayer over the years. "It simply has to stop," he says.

Stewart says the prime need is for a broader industrial base, adding he will work to attract new commerce and industry "as yet another means of holding the line on taxes in the face of expanded county services and the increased cost of providing these services."

He criticizes the current practice of paying for outside consultants instead of using the available county work force. He cited the $250,000 spent on paying for the solid waste disposal plan for the county.

Stewart is past chairman of the County Council of Mayors, past member of the Greater Transportation Committee (now the San Mateo County Transit District).

He has served as chairman of the advisory council for the Glenwood Home for Boys, is past chairman and board member of the North San Mateo County Sanitation District.

Antoinette Lane Wins Out in SSF

Antoinette Lane has been selected by the South San Francisco Planning Commission as the name for a new cul-de-sac which will be formed when Mission Road is realigned.

The city council in March must consider the commission's recommendation about the lane.

As part of the Colma Creek Flood Control project, Mission Road will be realigned this year to more closely follow the creek east to Chestnut Avenue.

The existing Mission Road from Oak to Chestnut avenues will become a cul-de-sac and that new street needs a name, City Planner David Hale said.

The commission considered naming the new street "Mission Court" because it closely resembles the original name of Mission Road. "Terragno Way was suggested by the police department to honor retired South San Francisco Asst. Police Chief Augustine Terragno.

Two residents on the future cul-de-sac, Mike Cloutre and Wally Heine, protested naming the street anything other than Mission Court.

Heine said it will be difficult for residents to adjust to an "oddball" new name. Cloutre said naming the street Mission Court will make it easier to change legal documents and maps.

The commission, however, wasn't convinced.

Fire Chief William Toelner had said the name Mission Court might cause public safety problems. It would be too easy to confuse the new court with the realigned Mission Road in fire or police emergency, he said.

Commissioner Wesley Salde said he would not object renaming the street Terragno Way if it were a full street.

Renaming streets after citizens who contributed to the city, he said, is "the kind of thing we as a commission ought to think about and do more of in the future."

However, he said the new cul-de-sac on maps will look like an extension of the existing Antoinette Lane and should be named accordingly.

The commission voted for the name Antoinette Lane, with the exception of Commissioner Eugene Mullins. Mullins backed the Terragno Way proposal but his motion died for lack of a second.

SSF Taxi Fare Rate Increase

It will cost more for South San Franciscans to ride taxicabs in their city starting March 25.

The City Council approved a rate increase request by Peninsula Yellow Cab Co. President Joseph Gilio Wednesday.

Rates for a flag drop, when the meter starts running, will increase from 90 cents to $1.10. Mileage fees will increase from 90 cents to $1.10 a mile.

The current waiting time rate of $9 an hour will not increase. Gilio told council that cab losses have ranged from a low of $2,352 in 1972 to $37,460 in 1975.

Since the last rate increase in March 1975, insurance rates have risen 49 per cent, parts and car upkeep are up approximately 15 per cent and wages and fringe benefits are up more than 15 per cent, Gilio said.

"The transportation industry is the hardest hit as the result of inflation," said company attorney George Corey.

SSF Board Chides Report

The South San Francisco Unified School District board of trustees asked one of its special committees for something really asked of committees — more talk and more action.

The board received a report from Dorothy B. Macabee, chairwoman of the Secondary Education Advisory Committee, outlining the committee's first two years.

The committee was set up to funnel information and complaints from parents and students in the district to the board and to make recommendations about desired changes.

At the end of the report, however, the board seemed disappointed that the committee passed on few specific recommendations.

"I think the concerns we had when the committee formed are the same ones we have now," trustee Patsy Jo Hilliard said. "What have we achieved up to now? I'm anxious to know what's happened between 1974 and 1976."

Mrs. Macabee said the committee's work would be easier if it were to receive specific questions from the board that it could make recommendations on. Otherwise, she said, the committee's goals can be "a little nebulous."

The board asked the committee to expand on one of its main concerns — the transition sixth-graders face when entering junior high school.

Mrs. Macabee said an effort should be made to orient the students and their parents to what the children could expect in junior and senior high school.

But board member John Dillon asked the committee

if it also could make specific proposals for easing that transition, such as inviting junior high school counselors to the elementary schools for sessions with the students.

Board President Kenneth Austin asked the committee also to point out which junior high schools are doing a particularly good or bad job in orienting students.

Robert Parr, the committee's liaison with the district administration, said the committee would welcome specific questions from the board. "We would have homework other than just looking around for things to consider," he said.

Among the other recommendations the committee has made during its two-year existence are making physical education elective on a trial basis for seniors and allowing senior high school students to smoke in designated areas.

Mrs. Macabee asked the board to urge teachers and counselors to join the committee. It now is made up of parents and student representatives from most schools in the district.

SSF Planners Agree On Donation of Land

Giuseppe Cuneo will not — at least for now — have to donate an 8,400 square foot chunk of property in rural South San Francisco to the city as the Planning Commission originally voted Dec. 9.

The commission agreed this week that it would be a hardship for Cuneo to donate the property to the city now and voted to grant him a use permit application for a produce market.

The property, on Old Mission Road, lies in the middle of an area through which the city plans to extend Hickey Boulevard from the west at some future date.

Cuneo's representative, Rams Embimbo of Woodside, told the commission that it would be more advantageous for Cuneo if he could donate the land to the city later — after he has developed it and invested about $40,000 to $50,000 for a produce market and rental warehouse. He said he plans even more improvements later.

The property now is undeveloped. Presumably it would benefit him more from a tax standpoint if it were donated later.

But City Planner David Hale said the donation to the city should be made now, not later. The property would be taken off the tax rolls.

Embimbo disagreed. He said Cuneo's market will be about 600 feet away from the Hickey Boulevard extension when, and if, it is built.

The only reason the city can demand the land, he said, is because Cuneo's property is one parcel and he is unable to divide it into smaller lots.

Embimbo also said Cuneo would have no recourse later if the city were to refuse to allow him access from one side of his property to the other if he donates the section for the right-of-way. The city could even force him to lease back the land to use it for access to the rear of his property.

"It is obvious they are using this particular use permit as a hook to get this property," said Commissioner Eugene Mullin.

However, City Engineer Bob Yee and Director of Community Services Frank Addiego both said the land dedication should be made now.

"It's better that we face the problem now rather than run away from it," Addiego said.

The commission had approved the dedication requirement on Dec. 9 after a series of three complex public hearings. It decided to reconsider the motion because of confusion about it.

City Planner David Hale had recommended that the decision be upheld, but the commission, instead, temporarily dropped the donation requirement.

The commission also granted Cuneo's request that he not be required to dedicate another 890-foot strip of land for the future Mission Road right-of-way and improvements.

Cuneo will have to make the land donation when he places permanent buildings on his property or when that portion of the existing Old Mission Road is improved.

Youths Battle Police

Beleaguered Pacifica police had to call in about 30 reinforcements from outlying districts Friday night when carousing youths at a Catholic Youth Organization dance began fighting with them.

Police started getting complaints about the youths making noise in the parking lot outside St. Peter's Church, 700 Oddstad Road, around 10 p.m.

When they arrived and tried to control the drinking and rock-throwing crowd, the youths reportedly began fighting with the outnumbered police.

About two hours later, with the help of police from other cities and as a crowd of between 150 and 200 persons watched, police finally brought the ruckus under control. About 20 juveniles and young adults were arrested.

Police said they did not know whether those arrested were Catholic youth attending the dance or others loitering in the parking lot.

BRIGHT LIGHTS BY LLOYD JOHNSON

Greenhouse Garden Restaurant Pop Stop

Lehr's Greenhouse Garden restaurant in San Francisco has been bustling at the seams with show-biz types this week. Fred Waring and his Pennsylvanians, the Cech Folk Ballet and the British Black Watch and Royal Marines have all been staying next door at the Hotel Canterbury and making the Greenhouse their dining headquarters. A speedy recovery to our good friend Vince Licata, who has been "under the weather" the past week. We miss his jovial greeting during lunch and dinner sessions. In the meantime, sons Tony and Louis call the restaurant signals at Vince's Italian and Seafood restaurant. The Creative Sandwich is the newest addition to Tanforan Park's Garden Restaurant complex, San Bruno. A variety of unique sandwiches, all reasonably priced, is the specialty. The 50 cent coupon in today's "Bright Lights" is honored after 4 p.m., and it provides customers with a 50 cents savings on any purchase over $1 at any of the nine Garden Restaurants.

New Menu Prices at South Tahoe Nugget

South Tahoe Nugget restaurant prices have been increased as of March 1. One of the biggest breakfasts in the Lake Tahoe area is now available for just $1.49, and the "All you can eat" lunch or dinner will be served for only $2. Even with the slight increase in price, it's still a bargain and well worth a dining visit. The sister club, Barney's, also affords a selective menu 24 hours a day. Backdrop this with "Entertainment the Nevada Way" and a visit to either of these clubs is sure to be a "Jackpot" winner. The culinary experience of Wilfred "Chuck" Pierce, now at The Castaway, Coyote Point, is worth boasting about. When he first arrived on the West Coast in the early 60's, Pierce worked for the Chefs Association, then at the Village Pub, in Woodside. He was also chef at the Sharon Heights Golf and Country Club in Menlo Park, Ricky's Swiss Chalet and the Hyatt Corporation. For a Sunday morning breakfast at the seashore, the answer is Nick's in Rockaway Beach, Pacifica. Post time for ham 'n' eggs is 10 a.m., with restaurant service continuing through the day and evening. Open seven days a week, Jimmy Payer entertains nightly, Wednesday through Sunday. Continental cuisine is featured at The Moonraker; Captain Charles is known for its gourmet seafood specialties.

Phil Lehr's Perfect Weekend Beginning

If you're planning to see "Equus" at the Geary Theater this weekend, dinner at either of the nearby Phil Lehr's Steakeries is the perfect beginning to an unforgettable evening "on the town." Service is swift and attentive and there is abundant parking in the big Taylor-Ellis lot. In addition to the already-famed menu at Scotty Campbell's restaurant, Redwood City, dinner guests may now enjoy Cannelloni. Hostess Helen Trainor says the new item has caught on in great style, and this scribe is looking forward to a goodly share. Cleanliness is an important factor in any restaurant operation, and this is one of the elements being stressed by Robert Kania, new manager of The Tailwinds. Robert is so proud of his kitchen operation, he will take customers on an exclusive tour anytime they wish to inspect it. At the House of Lim, in the Marsh Manor Shopping Center, Redwood City, owner Ray Lim is a wizard with the cookpots. He has devised Chinese dinners to suit the individual or to be served family-style to two or more persons. Plus an array of a la carte dishes. For the diner whose strictly American taste can resist the tempting aromas of the Cantonese, the menu offers a number of American dinners. Luncheon is also served.

Toot of the Horn To Romano Family

With the many restaurants blowing their horns on how great their pizza is and how many selections there are to choose from, it's a pleasure to do a little tooting from this desk. "Bright Lights" blows its horn loud and clear for our good friend Enrico Romano and his sweet mother, Enricketta, who flip the pizza dough at Romano's in Rockaway Beach, Pacifica. This mother and son combination is a "dough" winner in pizzas and Italian dinners. Restaurant business may be low in some categories, but not so at the Velvet Turtle (Burlingame and Menlo Park). Business continues in high gear, with the menu listing 16 enticing entrees all sensibly priced - from Australian Lobster Tails to thick, juicy prime rib. Reservations suggested. For a fun evening of dancing, join down the Villa Hotel in your little black book. The real great Charlie Blackwell Trio entertains and plays for dancing nightly, Tuesday through Saturday, from 9:30 p.m. For an exciting evening in San Francisco, Finocchio's on Broadway offers a glittering line-up of female impersonators, one of the most unusual vocations in the world, in four shows nightly, except Monday and Tuesday. The fast-paced shows feature a variety of acts which are always in good taste for mixed audiences.

Spring Opera Theater Presents Bach Work

The absorbing drama of Bach's "The Passion According to St. Matthew" is in final preparation by Spring Opera Theater for presentation at the Curran the evenings of March 4, 5 and 13; one matinee is scheduled March 7.

Audiences and critics who viewed the production when it opened Spring Opera Theater's 1973 season hailed this conception by Gerald Freedman of Bach's devout musical masterwork as a moving theatrical experience. Presented in an English version by Robert Shaw, the narrative devised by Bach's librettist for Good Friday service of 1729 draws a modern-day congregation into the climactic events of the evangelist's gospel.

For the first time in the history of San Francisco Opera (which produces SPOT), a woman will be on the podium.

Fiora Contino has performed major operatic and oratorio repertoire with the Memphis Opera and at Indiana University, where she is chairman of the choral department. Maestra Contino also directs the Choral Institute of the Aspen Music Festival and conducts at Temple University's summer music festival.

Returning in the roles they created for the 1973 production are soprano Carmen Balthrop (Communicant) and baritone Douglas Lawrence (Jesus) and Allen Barker (Judas).

The young Miss Balthrop has already received considerable acclaim. Winner of the 1975 Metropolitan Opera National Auditions, she has sung with the Baltimore Lyric Opera Company, at Carnegie Hall (in Messiah), and in the title role of Houston Grand Opera's production of Treenishia by Scott Joplin.

In their first engagements with SPOT are Roger Bryant as the tenor communicant and Donnie Ray Albert as the priest. Also making SPOT debuts are tenor Michael Sells (the Evangelist) and baritone Craig Feilds (Peter). Gwendolyn Jones (Communicant) and James Courtney (Caiphas) have both earned credits at Tucson Opera; along with Daniel Sullivan (Pilate), a SPOT veteran, they have taken part in numerous San Francisco Opera productions of the last few years.

SPOT audiences know director Freedman from a sensitive debut with "Orfeo" in 1972 and from last season's production of "Death in Venice." New York City Opera's "Die Fledermaus" and "Idomeneo" of 1974 were his work, as was the first opera produced by Kennedy Center and the original, off-Broadway "Hair." The nation awaits eagerly the world premiere of Californian Andrew Imbrie's "Angle of Repose," which Freedman will direct for San Francisco Opera's 1976 season.

Tickets for all performances are available at the Curran Theatre Box Office, or may be reserved by telephone at 415-673-4400.

Junior Grand National Plans

During the next several weeks about 700 youthful Californians will be polishing their equestrian skills in preparation for the 30th Junior Grand National Horse Show April 15-21, at the San Francisco Cow Palace.

For more than a generation, young riders from Western states and Canada have competed in the annual show which is now the largest on the Pacific Coast and one of the most prestigious in the country. Since it opened as a comparatively small two-day show in 1947, the Junior Grand National horse show has moved to a six-day attraction that last year was awarded the rarely given "Star Rating" by the American Horse Shows Association. Allen Ross, nationally known Santa Barbara horse show manager, again will direct the junior show. Ross, also the manager of the Grand National each fall, said two prominent judges have been selected to officiate at the April event.

Judging the Hunter-Jumper division will be Mrs. Judy Kennedy, who judged at the Junior Grand National two years ago. A resident of Malibu, Mrs. Kennedy judges some 40 shows every year through the West, Mid-West and Canada.

Judge of the Western division will be Richard Deller, a Clements rancher who raises and trains quarter horses. A judge of major American Horse Shows, Deller has judged several times at both the senior and junior Grand Nationals.

Exhibitors of hunters and jumpers will compete Thursday through Saturday, April 15-17, with western classes scheduled Monday through Wednesday, April 19-21.

The English division will include classes for hunter seat, working hunters, hunters under saddle, hunter seat equitation and jumpers. The courses will be set by Jarvis Esenwein, Fountain Valley. Classes for stock seat, stock horses, trail horses and western pleasure will make up the western division.

AHSA steward will be Warren Underwood, with Jerome O'Brien serving as ring master.

Youngsters, five through 18, wishing to enter, should contact the Horse Show Office, Cow Palace, P.O. Box 34206, San Francisco, or call (415) 584-2480. Entry deadline is March 26.

Forestry Division Needs Firefighters

The California Division of Forestry, which employs over 1,500 seasonal firefighters throughout the state, is accepting applications from March 1 through March 5. Applications received before or after those dates will not be accepted.

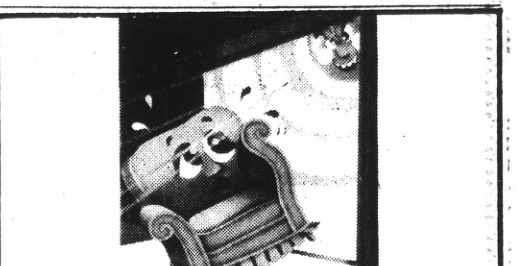

Applicants must be at least 18 years old, be able to do heavy physical work, have normal vision function and health, willingness to live and work in remote locations and on weekends and holidays.

Applications are available at the Division of Forestry Station in Felton on Highway 9 or in Belmont on 20 Tower Road or by writing to: California Division of Forestry, P.O. Drawer F-2, Felton 95018. The firefighter, using shovels and other hand tools, constructs fire control lines, uses hose lines and nozzles, operates pumps and will use a variety of fire control skills. As a member of fire crew he lives in barracks and is ready to respond to any emergency 24 hours a day.

Cellist to Perform

The internationally-recognized cellist and conductor Laszlo Varga, professor of music at San Francisco State University, will present his annual solo March 7 at 3 p.m. in the university's Knuth Hall. It is in the Creative Arts Building on Holloway near 19th Avenue. General admission is $2 and $1 for students.

Transit Director Takes Optimistic View

By VERN KROGH

"Unless we are fully operational by the middle of 1977, I'll be out looking for a job."

That was the pledge made Thursday night to members of the Regional Planning Committee of San Mateo County as they held their monthly meeting at the Burlingame Library by John T. Mauro, general manager of the San Mateo County Transit District.

The first step to get the system on the road was taken Wednesday night, he reported, when appraisers were hired to appraise the Northgate Transit Service in Daly City, which is "necessary to acquire and to improve service."

He said a second step has already been taken with the cooperation of San Bruno officials to start service there by March 3.

Although a contract with Servi-Car Corp. and San Mateo will expire March 31, Mauro said he will ask his board to extend the contract between the transit district and the company.

"We have very tight targets," Mauro said. "I don't have the buses. I don't have the garages, and I only have four people on my staff. But unless we are fully operational by mid-1977, I'll be looking around for a job."

Mauro took the opportunity to defend his staff and the salaries paid them.

"I wish I had as many people driving buses as I have had advising us," he asserted. But, he told the committee, he expects "to pay top money for top quality people. I intend to keep it tight and under control. We will put together a top level team. If you are really going first-class, and not make the same mistakes as our neighboring communities did, we must do this."

Future contracts, according to Mauro, will not be between cities and private transportation firms, but between the transit district and the companies, he said.

When he arrived in San Mateo County from Pittsburgh, Pa., Mauro said, he found he had "inherited" 69 buses — 62 of which were mini-buses.

They were made by eight manufacturers, three of whom are now out of business. They were propelled by three types of engines and three types of fuel, he said, and at the best would have lasted from three to five years.

The seating capacity of the buses, he reported, was 1,660, and "if you throw them all out on the street you will find yourself already overloaded."

He estimated by next July he will have between 400 and 450 buses with a passenger capacity of 100,000 riders a day.

Mauro cited Pacifica as an example, which "started with nine little buses when it began service to BART in Daly City last November."

Now it is carrying 1,000 passengers a day and is so over-crowded it must pass passengers, leaving them standing at bus stops, angry.

Although it is believed most passengers travel to San Francisco, Mauro reported, a survey showed only 26 per cent of the county's residents work in San Francisco, and only 8 per cent work in downtown San Francisco.

Of the county's workers, Mauro said, 55 per cent live and work in San Mateo County, and there are 30,000 jobs at the San Francisco International Airport alone.

Between 7:30 and 8 a.m., he said, 3,000 workers drive to United Airlines.

As the county "stabilizes" its system, Mauro noted, a way must be found to get the Southern Pacific Railroad to improve its commute trains and increase ridership.

"Southern Pacific has the only good long-range service we have today," he said.

As no public transit system is self-supporting,

Mauro estimated, the system should earn 30 to 40 per cent of its upkeep from its fare boxes.

Already, according to Mauro, 11 cities are operating their own bus lines at a cost of $3.7 million this year. He said he sees no hope for long-range federal aid.

In other business Thursday night, the committee concurred in a recommendation of the county that no instrument approaches be allowed at Half Moon Bay Airport to "keep noise contours down."

Staff members, at the request of Anja Miller of Brisbane, were asked how the county distributes funds under the Housing Community Development Act. She charged that present practices discriminate against smaller communities and do not reflect their needs.

It was agreed to invite representatives of various cities to present park and recreation plans to determine the county's needs, and to set up a meeting during the week of March 22 to discuss plans of the Association of Bay Area Governments to funnel all air quality, water pollution, solid waste disposal and fluid waste standards through one nine-county regional agency.

Aaron Jackson of Burlingame was re-elected president, while Michael Barrett of Redwood City was re-elected vice president.

Marina Plan Okayed

A $134,000 agreement for the first phase of South San Francisco's $6 million Oyster Point marina was approved by the City Council Wednesday.

Daniel, Mann, Johnson and Mendenhall, a Redwood City architectural and engineering firm, will develop a master plan and detailed engineering studies over the next seven months.

This phase of the marina has taken three years to reach and the city still must receive permits from several state agencies before construction may begin.

The marina expenditure, however, has been a target of some council candidates at recent candidates' nights.

Some have said that the marina improvements could be less extensive, saving the city thousands of dollars.

The council attempted to set the record straight.

"This is a golden opportunity for South San Francisco," said Councilman Terry Mirri. "This city is progressive enough to grab hold of the reins and do something with them."

The city has received loans from the California Department of Navigation and Ocean Development to fund most of the marina improvements.

The council has projected that the marina will be a break-even project with no subsidy from the general fund.

Councilman Leo Padreddi said the loan will not result in additional taxes on South San Franciscans and that only those who use the harbor will pay for its upkeep through fees.

He also pointed out that if the marina expansion is not completed, the city may still have to control a leaching problem and that project alone would have to be funded by taxpayers.

Leaching occurs where bay waters carry off land-fill waste as the tide recedes.

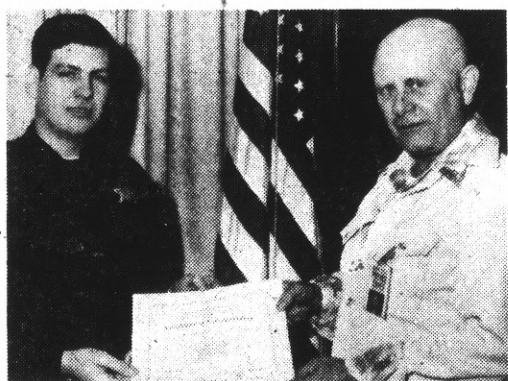

The Regional Water Quality Control Board or other agencies could require that South San Francisco leachate at its harbor whether or not improvements are planned.

Leaching control, however, already is included in the loan for marina expansion. A loan for leaching alone could not be obtained, it was explained.

City Manager Ed Alario said controlling the leach could cost the city $500,000 to $1 million although the DMJM representatives refused to confirm that figure.

"We don't really know the extent of the problem yet," said Kenneth Wuest, DMJM associate vice president.

The South San Francisco marina expansion will add approximately 320 berths to the existing 278 berths.

Honored — Daly City Police Officer Henry I. Bunch was recently honored with a certificate of commendation from Police Chief David A. Hansen for conducting himself in a professional manner while investigating a disturbance which resulted in the shooting of an armed suspect.

County Men's Garden Club Prepares For Fair, Sale, Other Events

With spring approaching, gardening organizations undertake a variety of activities — including some social endeavors.

The Men's Garden Club of San Mateo County held a highly successful "Ladies Night" Feb. 6 at the Burlingame Sheraton.

The traditional affair was attended by 175 ardent floriculturists — club members, wives and guests — who enjoyed a social hour, dinner and an exciting talk and demonstration by Wally Lane, horticulturist, custom designer and proprietor of the Rare Plant Nursery in Aptos. His topic was "How to Really Enjoy Flowers."

The next major undertaking by the Men's Garden Club of San Mateo County is the annual one-day plant sale at Borel Square, San Mateo, May 29.

Most of the sale plants are grown by the club members, but local nurserymen are very cooperative in supporting the event.

Their contributions serve to promote gardening interests, and nurserymen appreciate that proceeds from the plant sales are constructively used by the Men's Garden Club in various worthwhile community endeavors.

A wide variety of favorite house and garden plants will be available to the public. Details will be publicized later.

Another upcoming Men's Garden Club project is a "Begonia Booth" at the San Mateo County Fair & Flora Fiesta in mid-summer.

Club begonia exhibitors rank high among amateur growers. One member, Leroy H. Cramer of Millbrae, a grower and multiple prize winner, owns more name varieties than any amateur grower in the United States. Cramer has personally hybridized two name varieties of his own.

Practical information on successful begonia growing practices is available on site, along with a club-developed pamphlet on begonia culture for those interested.

Each year the Men's Garden Club provides one or more scholarships to outstanding horticulture students at the College of San Mateo who are headed for a four-year college to earn a degree in horticulture.

Funds for these scholarships and other community activities are earned from such efforts as the Club's annual plant sale.

Heading the Men's Garden Club this year as President is Emil Stiefvater of Hillsborough. Frank K. Black of San Carlos serves a Vice-President and Program Chairman for the monthly meetings. Other officers are John A. Corlett, (Secretary) Hillsborough; Frank V. Tinker, (Treasurer) San Mateo; and Thomas Hulton, (Past President) San Mateo.

Dinner meetings of the Men's Garden Club are held the second Thursday of each month (except July and August) at which time a recognized authority discusses some phase of gardening — usually pertinent to the season.

After the program, plants and other garden items are distributed from the prize table. Membership is made up of both beginners and more experienced gardeners who are available to assist others on any gardening subject.

A large garden library of over 80 volumes is available to members. Men interested in learning more about the Men's Garden Club of San Mateo County and who would like to attend a monthly meeting may call Robert L. Goldberg, Membership Chairman, at 347-6424.

Another View of Innovation

By JOHN HORGAN
AN ANALYSIS

For the last several years, the public schools of San Mateo County have eagerly fought for and embraced millions of dollars in special federal and state funds for new programs and changes in curriculum.

Experimentation and innovation, two favorite catchwords of public school officials, have become rallying cries at budget time in each of the county's 24 school districts.

When it comes to getting children to learn, there is a strong viewpoint that the more things change, the better the results will become. The emphasis on altering the methods and means of the classroom teacher is almost a fetish in some districts.

However, not all school spokesmen share the opinion that this is going to be a panacea.

The other night, one public school trustee, Robert Braun of the San Mateo City School District, the largest elementary district in this county, talked about what he believes is the most important aspect of any teaching institution.

His remarks came in the context of a discussion about yet another attempt to secure outside funding for a special program for students in that district.

Braun was not hostile toward that program, but he expounded at some length about any district's obvious priority: good teachers.

Braun said, "One thing I have found in my experiences in visiting classrooms around the district is that the quality of learning which appears to be taking place seems to happen largely independently of the organization or the curriculum."

He continued: "You can see great things happening in a self-contained classroom. Whether a teacher uses one method of reading or another doesn't seem to make that much difference."

While Braun pointed out that "most of the attempts to improve education seem to center around changing the curriculum or changing the organization," his examination of the effectiveness of the schools seems to indicate that such efforts could well be immaterial in the long run.

Said Braun, "Parents have commented to me that they didn't look so much at the program as the individuals involved in it. They decided to place their children in a particular program not because they thought the program might be particularly effective but because they had confidence in the person running it."

In other words, it's the people who count.

According to Braun, "It seems to me that a large amount of the effectiveness of a program depends on the individual and the way material is used."

Although he did not categorically come down on any and all experimental changes, he did urge his fellow board members to consider ways to help make the district more effective with the materials and methods already at hand.

Braun, along with the others on the board, then voted in favor of applying for $127,000 in state funds for a project involving work experience for some middle school children.

Press Women Sponsor Writers' Workshop

California Press Women, Inc., the statewide chapter of a nationwide organization of professional journalists, is sponsoring a writers' workshop March 6 in the San Francisco Press Club, 555 Post St., San Francisco.

The workshop will be divided into two sections: freelance writing, which will start after the 8:30 a.m. registration, and investigative reporting, which will start immediately after lunch. The workshop is expected to end around 3:30 p.m.

The $15 registration fee covers both sessions and lunch. The morning panel will include writer Alma Carroll, photographer Ted Mahieu, San Francisco Chronicle reporter John Stanley and journalist Marion Lowenstein.

Among the topics the panel will discuss are developing an idea, protecting it from plagiarism, learning self-discipline and marketing articles and photos.

The afternoon panel will include KTVU reporter Stan Atkinson, KPIS reporter Marilyn Baker, San Francisco Chronicle reporter Paul Avery, Jean Wiley Huyler, president of the National Federation of Press Women, and Justin Roberts, a reporter for the Contra Costa Times.

The four panelists will discuss time pressures involved in in-depth reporting, whether a story can be too "hot" to publish, knowing the difference between a dead end and a bluff and access to public documents. The discussion will be illustrated with actual cases.

Registration should be sent to Dorothy Wolf, AT & T, Box 3288, San Francisco 94119. Checks should be made payable to California Press Women.

Ensemble Concert

The San Francisco Conservatory of Music's New Music Ensemble, under the direction of John Adams, will give a concert March 11 at 8 p.m. in the Rotunda of The San Francisco Museum of Art on Van Ness Avenue and McAllister Street in San Francisco.

Admission is free. For further information, contact the Office of Public Relations at the Conservatory, 564-8086.

Each of the panelists brings a wide experience to the workshop from his or her individual field.

Ted Mahieu, born and educated in Europe, lived in New Zealand for eight years and in San Francisco since 1961. He has worked as a full-time photographer for a large advertising agency and for the last 10 years has worked in advertising on assignment.

Alma Carroll, whose work frequently appears in the San Francisco Chronicle, the Los Angeles Times, and the Miami Herald, is an editor for Ad Age and former editor of Off Camera. She has worked as a publicist for David Suskind, William F. Buckley, Graham Kerr and others.

Stan Atkinson has spent his 20 years in television primarily as a reporter and anchorman, the positions he occupies at KTVU. March 1 he was designated a special assignment reporter and will concentrate on in-depth pieces of his own choosing.

He has been a director and writer, first for Wolper Productions and later his own company. He also taught journalism at Stanford University and was a Ford Foundation fellow there.

Heart Disease Is No. 1 Killer

Nearly 61,300 residents of California will die of heart and blood vessel diseases in 1976, according to Jerrold Goldman, M.D., president of the San Mateo County Heart Association.

This number represents 50 per cent of the state's estimated total of 122,000 deaths from all causes this year.

This month, which is American Heart Month, the nationwide Heart Fund campaign is being conducted to educate the American public about the nation's number one killers — heart and blood vessel diseases.

man said. This is more than all causes of death combined.

Aside from the suffering and loss of life, heart diseases cost the nation an estimated $22.7 billion in lost wages and medical expenses each year.

Early diagnosis and treatment can reduce the incidence of heart attack and stroke, the two major cardiovascular diseases. Knowing their early warning signs and risk factors can save lives.

"These diseases will kill more than a million Americans this year," Dr. Gold-

DC Man Dies In Long Fall

A Daly City man apparently despondent over family troubles jumped to his death from a 12-story apartment building at Parkmerced housing complex in San Francisco.

Before he plunged to his death at 5:40 p.m., Guido Casper Tiani, 36, let it be known he had arranged to booby trap his estranged wife's home in South San Francisco, police said. It was not revealed how he intended to booby-trap the home.

The wife, Darlene Tiani, however, had moved from her former address at 481 Alta Vista Drive to another South San Francisco home across town.

Police said the Alta Vista Drive home was vacant, but an exhaustive search of the premises was carried out "just in case (Tiani) did rig a booby trap there," a police officer said.

Burlingame attorney

John Crocker called South San Francisco police about 9:20 p.m. Tuesday advising them of the suicide death of Tiani and explaining the victim had, on several previous occasions, threatened to do bodily harm to his wife.

Bomb experts from South San Francisco and the San Mateo County Sheriff's Office conducted a search of both Mrs. Tiani's current home and the Alta Vista house.

No booby traps were found.

Mrs. Tiani, employed at the Serramonte Shopping Center in Daly City, was unaware of the death of her husband, or of the booby-trap threat for several hours after the incident occurred, police explained.

The victim was employed by American Maintenance Company and was working as a gardener at the Parkmerced complex, it was learned.

Members who have been asked to share modeling duties include Betty Battaglia, Rose Ann Ericson, Jannelle Ostrander, Marian Leitner, Diane Steinkamp, Jeanette Acosta, Charlotte Kitowski, Vera Marcus, Dorothea Burgess and Joan Bonanno.

The Versailles Salon of Westborough will create the coiffures.

During intermission, guests will hear several musical renditions by Mrs. Robert Cain who will be accompanied on the piano by Mrs. Peter Scatena.

Agencies Ask Help

Six community agencies have requested volunteer help from the Volunteer Bureau/Voluntary Action Center of San Mateo County.

AID TO VICTIMS AND WITNESSES — Persons to provide assistance to victims and witnesses for quick recovery from the effects of violent crimes. Training and agency experience will be offered.

BIRTHRIGHT — Telephone volunteers to give practical assistance to distressed pregnant women.

PLANNED PARENTHOOD — Aides to work with patients as interviewers in a clinic setting. Prospective volunteers will have an intake interview set up by appointment prior to training and orientation.

MILLS HOSPITAL — Volunteers to handle a variety of jobs. Orientation for new volunteers will be given on March 13 at 9:15 a.m.

PENINSULA HIGH SCHOOL — Assistants to work in the nursery on Thursday mornings. The children range in age from two weeks to two years old.

SUICIDE PREVENTION — Persons to help others who need assistance and strength to cope with the crises which affect their lives. A March 6 date has been set for the next volunteer training session.

Additional information about these and other job opportunities may be obtained by contacting the Volunteer Bureau which is located at 119 Primrose Rd., Burlingame. Open Monday through Friday from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., the bureau is a project of the Assistance League of San Mateo County. It shares in the United Way of the Bay Area and is funded in part by the County of San Mateo.

Manzanita Lake to Be Reopened This Year

A portion of Manzanita Lake Campground at Lassen Volcanic National Park will be reopened on an interim basis for the 1976 visitor season, Howard H. Chapman, Western Regional Director of the National Park Service has announced.

"There was overwhelming favorable response from the public to the Environmental Assessment proposing the reopening of 190 campsites for use this summer," Chapman said.

The Park Service's Western Regional Advisory Committee also recommended reopening part of the Manzanita Lake Campground at its meeting in Redding last August.

"However," Chapman continued, "the decision to reopen 70 per cent of the campground for this summer was based, in part, on a careful review of the geological hazards. It was concluded that the risk of potential hazards upon that portion of the campground to be reopened is at a level that can be tolerated temporarily."

The other facilities and developments at Manzanita Lake will remain closed.

TAKE IT

Westmoor's Jerry McNeil appears to be dishing the ball off to San Mateo rival Sylvester Pritchett (13) in CCS action at the College of San Mateo gym Friday night. Westmoor won the game and earned a shot at top-rated St. Ignatius tonight.

Best Cure for the Weekend Athlete's Pain — Abstain!

One of the Sunday supplements recently ran an article describing the most common injuries of weekend athletes, their prevention and cure. It covered every prevention technique except perhaps the most foolproof method of preventing weekend athletic injury — non-participation.

It took us years to develop that technique — often painful years, we might add. We finally hit upon the discovery two years ago while participating in a Daly City Recreation Department softball league.

The revelation occurred to us as we were attempting to convert an easy ground ball into an infield single. As we offered that last little frantic lurch in a futile effort to touch our toe to first base before the ball reached the first baseman's glove, something snapped in our leg. It was a hamstring, and that evening we had to crawl to our second floor bedroom on all fours.

As we were ruminating over the incident during our recovery period, we recalled the thought that had bolted through our brain as that hamstring snapped — "what the hell am I doing out here?"

Indeed, what were we doing out there? Trying to relive past glories? Hardly, because there wasn't a helluva lot to relive.

Trying to impress a girl? We had impressed a girl in 1960, and were still married to her, and she was totally unimpressed with our middle-aged athletic endeavors.

When are you going to grow up and start watching other guys hurt themselves," she used to advise us.

We certainly weren't making any money out of playing softball; it was in fact costing us money, because we had had to buy new spikes and a glove and a hat, and there was the transportation during a fuel shortage and . . . what WERE we doing out there?

What we were doing, we had said when we started our comeback, was getting in shape. What an irony. The hamstring pull had so totally immobilized us that by the time we recovered, we were in worse shape than we had been in when we first started playing.

And even before that, the extra activity had sent us back to a weight-gaining practice which we had eschewed for years — beer drinking.

Playing ball had always made us thirsty for beer, a beverage which we otherwise never craved. We also ate more, and so had gotten to the point where we had to play just to work off the extra food and beer we thrived on when we were playing; maintaining the status quo that we had enjoyed without playing softball at all!

It was a vicious circle.

AND THEN we remembered a column we had written several years before, in which we had maintained that middle aged pots and shortness of breath when over-exercising were nature's way of telling us that we shouldn't try to do at 40 what we did at 20: sort of built-in safety devices.

Well, we tell you, it has worked for us. We haven't been out of breath or pulled a hamstring since the day we retired from softball.

But we are in good enough shape to walk upstairs to the bedroom, or the two blocks to the mailbox, or to type this column, or to move around at our normal job all day without feeling undue stress on our lungs or limbs.

Don't get us wrong. We are not against playing sports in middle age. But the worst possible reason to play sports is to keep in shape. The best way to do that is to eat a well balanced meal, but not too much of it; drink just enough to get relaxed, and drink only good booze; don't smoke; and stay in bed as much as possible.

Now, the reasons to play sports are for fun, because you enjoy competition, enjoy winning or are a sado-masochist.

IF YOU really must know, we fell asleep during the fourth round of the Ali-Coopman heavyweight championship farce and missed the knockout.

Had Howard Cosell been broadcasting, he might have kept us lulled long enough so that we would have missed the re-runs, too. But we saw the re-runs, and then wished that Howard had been broadcasting.

LOCAL NOTES: Mission High Athletic alumnae in this circulation area! Don't forget Friday night's 27th annual Mission High Athletic Alumnae dinner at the Seven Hills restaurant at 26 California St. in San Francisco at 7 p.m. for drinks, 8 p.m. for eating, if you like that sort of thing. Price is $7, which includes tip.

Members of the 1932 championship football team will be honored, and introduced by one of their peers, Johnny Swanson, who is also known in these parts as a bowling alley entrepreneur.

There will be no guest speaker, as there often is, because organizer Bill Mustanich has finally come to realize that nobody at Mission athletic dinners ever listens to guest speakers, anyway, no matter what their race, creed or graduating class.

Steve Shirley, the former Terra Nova southpaw fireballer who has pitched two years of impressive minor league ball for the Dodgers, has been hurling some batting practice for his former TN coach Marty Coil, and Coil reports that Shirley is throwing harder than ever.

"A little more control," says Coil, "and he'll be ready for the biggies."

COIL is not necessarily talking about Shirley's bases on balls, because he has improved considerably in that department. But Steve is still throwing too often behind on counts, and gets hurt occasionally when he has to groove pitches on 3-1 counts.

Shirley rooters are relieved about Coil's report on Steve's arm, because he had broken it in late season last year, and for a while his recovery seemed a little too slow.

There was a misprint in our column a couple of weeks ago on Ken Dito and his cable television show in San Francisco.

In reviewing the variety of shows he has aired, we mentioned his telecasts even extended to explanations of what constitutes good conforming in show dogs. But it came out in print, "what constitutes good conformity in shows."

In other words, Dito doesn't do self-evaluations on the air, which is what the misprint seemed to indicate.

TRIVIA OF THE WEEK: Ted Allen from Boulder Creek, Colo., July 26 threw 72 consecutive ringers to win the World Horseshoe Pitcher's Championship.

TAG END: Win a bar bet by asking which Warrior stands third on the team in blocked shots behind centers George Johnson and Clifford Ray.

You'll almost certainly win with smallish rookie guard Gus Williams, who is averaging .86 of them per full game.

Skyline Nine Wins

The bat of Steve Sbragia and the arm of Mike Piserchio propelled Skyline College's baseball team to a 3-1 victory over host Ohlone in the Coast Conference opener for both squads.

Sbragia led off the game in the top of the first with a home run. Ohlone tied the Trojans 1-1 in the second and the contest remained that way until the ninth.

Pinch-hitter Cory Price led off the game-winning rally with a base hit. Shortstop Bob Downing followed with another single.

Second baseman Dan Addiego then laid down a perfect bunt single, loading the bases.

Defensive Pressure Boomerangs on Rams

Wildcats Defeat Westmoor Rams

Quick-handed steals, defensive pressure in the middle and opportune fast-breaking situations — all traits of Westmoor High's Rams throughout the season — came back at them Saturday night in a rush as St. Ignatius won the Central Coast Section basketball finals with an impressive victory over the North Peninsula League champions.

St. Ignatius did what it had to do and more. The Wildcats, who have lost just one game this year, downed Westmoor, 57-48, and will now face Carmel at Stanford this Friday night.

Two specific sequences ended the Rams' season with 25-2 a record. The first was a rippling injury to forward Chris Tyeskey with 4:49 left in the third period. Tyeskey, who had scored 12 points to then including six in a row to pick up the Ram offense, somersaulted to the floor going for a loose ball and came up lame.

Without his quickness on offense, where he had been a dominating factor against outmatched San Mateo the night before, the Rams' attack stuttered, faltered and finally came apart.

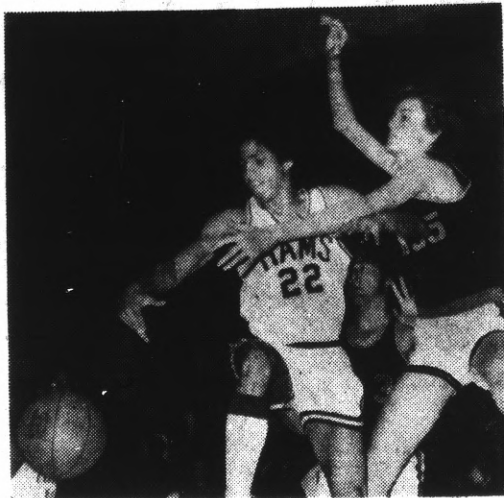

The second occurrence took place shortly after Tyeskey left the game with a 36-36 tie. The Rams coughed up the ball seven consecutive times, five of those without getting the ball past midcourt, and had eight turnovers in their nine possessions.

With Jerry McNeil making a valiant effort to pull them back, the Rams did manage one last-gasp drive that brought them to 44-42.

But key last-quarter buckets by Bill O'Neill (who did a complete reversal from his performance during the teams' first meeting), Kurt Bruneman and Craig Bianchi pushed SI to an eight-point spread and the victory.

Except for McNeil's early shooting the Rams didn't have the outside fire-power consistently as Wildcat guard Danny Abela did a stick-em job to Westmoor's Danny Williams, a consistently double-figure scorer who popped for 25 against San Mateo but went scoreless Saturday night.

Dons Tie Serra in Tourney

San Carlos High's baseball team scored a run in the bottom of the seventh inning Friday to gain a 6-6 tie with visiting Serra in a San Carlos Booster Club Tournament game at Burton Park.

In another tourney game, Carmel lost 4-1 to visiting Sacred Heart of San Francisco.

Serra entered the seventh behind 5-4. With Brian Duffy on second and Dave Rosaia on first and two outs, Bob Figue drilled a single down the left field line.

Duffy scored, and when the ball got by the outfielder, so did Rosaia.

Steve Aaron led off SC's half of the inning with a triple to right-center field. Gary Davenport plated him with a perfect one-out squeeze bunt.

The game was then called because of darkness.

Figue collected a pair of hits and three RBIs for Serra. SC's Steve Lautze totaled three hits.

Commission Backs Planner Hale

By JANET PARKER
The South San Francisco Planning Commission has formally requested a meeting with the City Council to discuss the deletion of the city planner position from the 1976-77 budget.

A letter signed by Planning Commission Chairman Homer Hale was handed to the councilmen during a break in their meeting, although there was no public discussion of the communication.

Chairman Homer Hale and Commissioner Joe Mathewson Jr. were in the audience.

Commission members, it was learned, are concerned that the commission will be forced to operate without the advice of a professional planning director.

City Planner David Hale

(no relation) was informed Feb. 9 in a letter from the City Council that he will no longer be employed by the city as of June 30, a cost-saving measure by the council.

The commission and the planning department staff did not learn of the decision until newspaper articles reported the move two weeks later.

Chairman Hale would say only that the entire commission feels David Hale "has been very capable, unless there's something we don't know about."

"Any commission without the aid of a planning staff and planning director would be seriously hampered," said Chairman Hale.

City Manager Ed Alario has said that Director of Public Service Frank Addiego or Zoning Administrator William Costanzo would take over David Hale's role as secretary to the Planning Commission.

Presently, Hale provides the commission with all staff reports and with other information on zoning and ordinances.

Addiego, Costanzo and other administrators attend the commission meetings and provide information as requested by the commission.

The Planning Commission met in executive session with Addiego Wednesday night.

Commissioners declined to discuss the executive session. But at some time between their meeting and the council meeting, the commissioners agreed to send the letter to the council.

Addiego said there has been no determination how the city will function without a city planner.

"A city the size of South San Francisco definitely needs a city planner," Addiego said.

Procedures for the commission to operate without a city planner will have to be determined by the new City Council after the March 2 election, Addiego said.

"The commission is concerned," he added.

Neither Homer Hale nor Mayor Richard Battaglia explained why the request for a meeting of the commission and council was not discussed in public session.

Hale said he presented the letter and it was up to the mayor how it would be handled.

Battaglia said he told Chairman Hale that it would not be proper for the City Council to meet with the commission before the council election on March 2.

There could be as many as three new council members.

The mayor said he had no idea why the letter was not presented by the Planning Commission in public session.

The mayor said he didn't want to bring it up in public because the joint meeting would not be an item for the present council to consider.

One commissioner, however, said that the letter was intended to be entered into the public record during the "Good and Welfare" section of the meeting.

Battaglia, who is not facing re-election and will remain on the council after March 2, said the City Council is in the best position to determine what personnel the city needs.

The commission, he said, does not have the financial information to determine the best cost-saving measures for the city.

David Hale has been city planner since June, 1974. Before that the city hired a consultant to handle planning reports for two years.

City administrators said South San Francisco has had a city planner at least since the late 1950s.

STUDENTS' FLAG

Young Betsy Ross—Pictured with the American Flag of 1863 that they made are some of the students who worked with school secretary Mrs. Shirley Cacela at Abraham Lincoln School. They made the flag for a recent Founder's Day program.

Scouts of U.S. Flag Troop 248 Made By Honored DC Pupils

Daly City Cub Pack 248 held its annual Blue and Gold dinner at Thomas Edison School Feb. 21. Over 100 persons were in attendance.

After a dinner prepared by parents of the cubs, a general meeting was held with Cubmaster Austin Holian officiating. Mr. Holian made the following awards to Cub Pack members:

DEN 2
Steve Erle — Bear, 2 gold arrows, 3 silver arrows; Tony Damico — Bear, 1 gold arrow, 2 silver arrows; T. J. Freitas — Bear, 1 gold arrow, 1 silver arrow.

DEN 4
Gilbert Buvelot — Wolf; Chris Ridgley — Wolf.

Webelo leader, Dick Futrell, then presented the following awards to Webelos:

Athlete and Geologist badges went to: Steven Bach, Dwayne Bonilla, Larry Futrell, Tim Abbott, Eric Zarate, Austin Holian, Mark Guerrero and Chris Graziani.

Dwayne Bonilla also received his forester badge. Paul Vogel and Brad Santiago received athlete badges. Mike Rusting and Bobby Bartolo received geologist badges.

In honor of President Abraham Lincoln and as part of their bicentennial observance, students of the Abraham Lincoln School have created a replica of the American Flag of 1863. The flag is like the one which flew over the nation's capital during Abraham Lincoln's term of office. The flag was unveiled at a PTA Founder's Day program last week.

Under the supervision of Mrs. Shirley Cacela, school secretary, and with material purchased by the Abraham Lincoln Student Council, the following students took part in reproducing the flag: Gina Battenfield, Sherri Backman, Regina Tubangui, Herman Gutierrez, Ashleen Downey, Marc Greendorfer, Nicky Saschin, Julie Brown, Diane Ho, Susan Gonzalez, See Ming Wong; Lance Kaplan, Francois Martin, Kathleen Quirley, Mary Omran, Ellen Granger, Leah Velasco and Allen Sam.

Post Writer Wins Taxpayer Award

Post staff writer John Horgan Thursday won one of four awards for journalistic excellence presented by the California Taxpayers Association at its 50th anniversary meeting in San Francisco.

Horgan was cited for his three-part series published last July on the need to reduce costly duplication in San Mateo County's educational system.

The award was accepted by Larry Armstrong of the Government Research Council of San Mateo County. The GRC nominated Horgan for his series. Besides a plaque, a $25 cash award was presented.

"While it is presumptuous to say that Horgan's article was solely responsible, several school districts in the county have begun dedicated efforts at consolidating business and other non-program costs of education," Armstrong told the association in nominating Horgan.

The award cites Horgan for "excellence and responsible interpretation which has contributed to a greater public understanding of governmental finance."

Armstrong said that the Hillsborough Boutique also won an award for its reporting of "the over budgeting fiasco in the Burlingame School District and in city government."

Other awards were won by the San Rafael Independent-Journal and the Sacramento Bee.

Burglary Suspect Held

A South San Francisco man was arrested and charged with burglary after he was apprehended while allegedly fleeing from a television warehouse in the Crocker Industrial Park.

Victor Ebejer, 31, of 436 Railroad Ave., South San Francisco, had already removed nine television sets from the Admiral Corporation Co. warehouse when police arrived on the scene at about 11:30 p.m. Wednesday, a police department spokesman said.

Officers Les Keats and Tom Stanghellini reported they saw Ebejer running from the warehouse and apprehended him a short distance away.

He had forced his way into the building and tripped a silent alarm, alerting police, according to reports of the incident.
